

Contents

Special Issue: Intertextuality, Transtextuality, and Rewriting in the Jewish, Christian and Islamic Literary and Legal Traditions

Editors of this Issue: Hakkı Arslan, Nicola Kramp-Seidel and Luca Rizzo

Editorial

Nicola Kramp-Seidel and Luca Rizzo

Intertextuality, Transtextuality, and Rewriting in the Jewish, Christian and Islamic Literary and Legal Traditions: Editorial — 419

Aufsätze – Articles – Articles

Joseph E. Lowry

Quranic Law and Its ‘Biblical’ Intertexts — 431

Luca Rizzo

The Use of Islamic Legal Discourse in Literature: How Did Premodern Arab Critics Classify and Analyze Legal Intertextuality? — 469

Zoltan Szombathy

Testimony, Lying and Calumny at the Interface of Islamic Law and Arabic Poetry — 509

Gianluca Parolin

An Appalled Ghost Guiding Readers Across Semiotic Fault Lines: The Contribution of Literature to the Appreciation of Legal Change — 535

Devin J. Stewart

General Remarks on Plagiarism and Authorship in Islamic Religious Texts and the Case of The Special Qualities of Friday by Zayn al-Dīn al-Āmilī (d. 965/1558) — 555

Farina Marx

Medieval Rabbinic Literature Seen in a New Light: The Sources of Yalkut Shimoni on the Book of the Twelve Prophets — 599

Bishara Ebeid

Ibn al-Ṭayyib's Fiqh al-Naṣrāniyya — 629

Neri Y. Ariel

The Quiet Quote: Thoughts on Quotation Norms and Plagiarism in the Judeo-Arabic Culture of the High and Late Middle Ages — 667